Based on this information, the players are able to react instinctively to different situations on the pitch, creating authentic-feeling, animated gameplay that offers players a high level of immersion and creativity. In addition, “Core Match Engine” – which is made up of the “Rush Engine,” “Balance Engine” and “Retro Engine” – enables the ball and players to behave more naturally in matches. Real-world player movement is applied to the ball in the same manner, meaning that you can run through players at full pace. When you play as your favourite team, you will notice that players will also run at a different pace to their real-life counterparts. This provides a more natural experience for players and their fans. In the Final Ball Control and Copa Libertadores events, the ball will become more unpredictable when you try to control it from right to left and vice versa. However, players and spectators will also get new opportunities to use right-footed passes and crosses. This means players who make more right-footed passes and crosses will have a better chance of scoring than before. Finally, in the knockout stages of competitions, free kicks and penalties will be defended better. This ensures that the penalties taker will get the chance to score from his penalty kicks, and the free kick taker will be more accurate from his free kicks. Players can also try and score more goals than they ever have in a FIFA franchise. New tactical attributes and striking systems The visual presentation of gameplay in FIFA 22 has been enhanced with the introduction of three new stadiums. The stadiums vary in size from 35,000 to 70,000 fans, with varying terrace heights and rooflines, and all are hosted by a real-life mascot. The stadiums represent 16 countries around the world, including Iran and Qatar, and feature new goals, goalkeepers and penalty areas, all of which react to player dribbling and passes in a more natural way. Adidas also used the new facilities to create a number of innovations, such as the adidas Barricade goalposts and the adidas Tacticoool goalkeeping system. The goalposts will react to your players making the high passes that create goals, and the goalkeeper's goalkeeping abilities are improved with a newly developed shooting system. The improved weighting of ball physics and player movement will also allow players to make tighter dummies
